Hi there,

The issue arose though because I selected a family payment method to pay for a pro licence.

That's why I keep getting sent back to the family support division.

We weren't aware that our family account was setup improperly with me not as another parent but instead as apparently a child.

Consequently, when I attempted to purchase a license, before google approved, google play requested they send my husband an approval request.... Which he never received.

Now I am unable to complete the purchase on my end because of an error from Google Play That says "Error you already have a pending purchase for this item.
Complete pending purchase.

Hi Myla,

Spent my Sunday trying to sort this out with Google and to summarise, a total waste of my time!

In summary, agent to agent to agent to agent, not my problem, not my department, and one agent actually had the gul to tell me they were going to terminate my help session because they needed to get to others who needed my help more.

I also find it a bit bizarre an alleged supervisor is unable to take ownership of the problem we are having at this stage and is now shuffling of along to another department.

I'll be contacting ABC news here in Australia pretty soon with the transcripts if this is not rectified.

Absolutely piss poor support from your organisation!

Hi Myla,

No need to action this any further, the issue has been resolved and I'm dropping it all.

I had to:

- Unlink the my partner from the family sharing/family payment method

- Set up my partner with a different credit/debit card.

- Complete the purchase on a separate device.

Sorry to have been a pest, but Google did give me quite the runaround here... And it's painfully clear, you guys have kinks to work out with how your family payment system operates but also customer service internally, to clarify, for the most part everyone at google has been polite, that's not the issue...

But to bounce me back and forth like that between departments, good grief!

Regards,

Stephen Cooke
